APRIL'S PINK MOON WILL BE THE BRIGHTEST OF 2020

The Biggest Moon Of 2020 Will Rise Tommorow!

Startgazers and nightt likers can look forward to a big event: the brightest moon of 2020 which will rise in April!

The rise is predicted and will most probably happen tomorrow, which is April 7. It will peak at 10:35 P.M, EDT.

Though called 'pink', the moon will actually be golden orange like other moons, and then turn whiter the higher it climbs into the sky. The name comes from pink wildflowers called creeping phlox, said Catherine Boeckmann. They bloom in April.

Supermoons are 7% bigger and 15% brighter than normal moons.

The term, 'Supermoon', doesn't have much science behind it. It was introduced in 1979 by Richard Noelle. Other names for an April full moon are: Egg Moon, Fish Moon, and Sprouting Grass Moon.

We hope you have the chance to go outside or look through a window to see this moon!

OLYMPICS CANCELED

Tokyo 2020 Olympics are cancled because of virus

The Olympics this year were summer Olympics.

This is the first ever time the Olympics are postponed, which is a huge thing and a big deal.

Japan has already hosted 3 Olympics: Summer In 1964, Winter 1972, and another one in 1998.

We hope this wont ever happen again, and we hope that you can watch the 2021 Olympics!
