THE FIRST CASE OF A NON-HUMAN IN U.S.A

Tiger has coronavirus

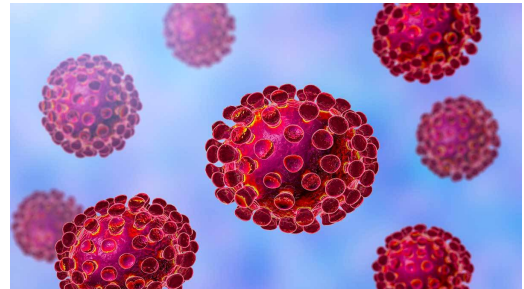

The first ever case in the animal kingdom was reported on April 5. A tiger in Bronx Zoo in New York has the coronavirus.

The 4-year old tiger is named Nadia. "I couldn't believe it", said Jim Breheny, who hopes that finding out stuff about Nadia will help research more about the virus.

Lets hope Jim is right.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF IRON

A faraway planet always has clouds and a chance of iron rain

A planet (not the one in the atricle)

Astronomers recently discovered a planet, Wasp-76b, which is similiar to Jupiter, but its twice as big and is 390 light-years away.

The planet has strong winds which can reach up to 11000 miles an hour. The winds constantly sweep iron off the surface.

It is unclear if the iron rains like a drizzle or downpours from the sky.

Wasp-76b is like our planet a bit, to! It has a light and day side, and it rotatates around its own star!

An illustrator named Fredrick Peeters drew a poster about the planet. It reads: Singing in the Rain, an Evening On Wasp-76b.
